CEA Hub Resource Guide

What type of resources are we looking for?

We are looking for resources that help Community Engagement Hub users to integrate community engagement and accountability (CEA) into their work. In addition to showcasing great examples of CEA, we would love to receive resources that provide readers with information, hints and tips on how to ensure good quality CEA in projects and programmes. Resources can cover a range of contexts, from emergencies to epidemics, and use a variety of CEA methods, from mobile cinema to social media campaigns.

What format should resources be in?

We welcome resources in a number of different formats, including, but not limited to, case studies, infographics, reports, tools, training materials, videos, and blogs. If you would like to submit a case study or blog, please refer to our blog and case study templates for guidance on formatting. If you would like additional support, you can get in touch with the hub's Content Officer Laurel Selby (lselby@redcross.org.uk) to discuss your proposed case study or blog and receive further guidance.

How do you format your resource description?

In 30 words or less, resource descriptions should clearly and briefly describe what a resource is about, as well as how it can be used when carrying out community engagement and accountability (CEA) activities. The description should begin by stating what format the resource is in, for example, 'This report... '. This should be followed by a brief overview of what the resource is about and a brief description of how the resource can be used in relation to CEA. Please see below for an example of a good resource description. It would be great if you could follow this format when submitting your resource.

This report captures the third round of findings from a KAP assessment carried out by the Turkish Red Crescent Society. The findings of the assessment are intended to inform an understanding of community perceptions of, and knowledge about, COVID-19 and, in turn, shape risk communication, behaviour change and community engagement activities.
